Sarah and Sam were twins. That meant that they had been born at the same time. They even looked very much alike, but Sarah was a girl and Sam was a boy. Both had the same dark brown hair and bright blue eyes, but other than that and sharing a birthday, they were completely different. When planning their birthday, Sarah and Sam were allowed to choose a theme. Sarah chose a horse theme because she loved her pony, Buttercup. She wanted little cupcakes with horses drawn on in icing. Sam loved being outside, but he was more interested in climbing trees and using his trucks to dig ditches. He wanted a large dirt cake made of cookies with small dump truck decorations.

The day of the party the yard looked confusing. There were horse and truck decorations hanging from every tree. A tray of cupcakes sat on one table with a large dirt cake on another. There was a blow up barn to bounce in and a large sand pit for those who wanted to play on the ground. The swing set with monkey bars and a see-saw was also in its usual place. The yard filled with guests ready to have fun.
