Children

A child is someone younger than 18 years old. A child is required to attend school if they are 6 years old or older. Children study English, Math, Science, and Social Studies. A child may have responsibilities, called chores, around the house. A child cannot drive, but as they get older they can learn how to do so. A child may have some work to do, but this is not usually for money. Children also get lots of time to play and have fun.

Adults

An adult is someone who is older than 18. Some adults go to school, called college, to get a better education. They study topics like Reading, Math, and Science. Most adults have a job that pays them money for doing a specific service. Being an adult means having many responsibilities. An adult often has chores around the house and if they are left undone the house can get really messy or in disrepair. Most people think being an adult means having no time to play.
