Country Life

Living in the country is a great life for some people. Many people who live in the country live on a farm. These people may have lots of animals that they use for food or sale to others. Those that live on a farm may also grow crops in large fields. These crops will be harvested for food and for sale to others. Farmers have to take care of their animals and/or crops every day of the year. They are not given vacation days or breaks.

Living in the country usually means being far away from neighbors, restaurants, and entertainment. Would you like to live in the country?

City Life

Living in the city is a great life for some people. Many people who live in the city do so to be near their jobs. Some people have animals as pets, but usually only one or two. People in the city do not often have much space, so any plants they grow have to be indoors. People in the city are usually close to lots of restaurants and places to go for fun. People in the city usually also live very close to their neighbors. People often live in buildings with many other families.

Living in the city can be exciting, but nature is limited. There may only be one or two trees and little open space. Would you like to live in the city?
