A Berry Day...

You and a group of friends are in the woods playing and find a clearing full of wild berry bushes. After going home to get a basket to put them in you rush back to the woods but can no longer find the clearing. After searching for a while you decide to give up and try to find it again the next day. However, the next day after school you and your friends can't agree on whether it would be worth it try to find the clearing again. What do you think the group should do? Write a note to your friends arguing either for or against trying to find the clearing again. Make sure you use details and facts to back up your choice.
