Amusing Finish

Read the story idea below and invent three different endings. Write quickly, getting down whatever comes into your mind.

A girl goes to an amusement park with her friends. They talk her into riding a roller coaster for the first time. She’s scared, but doing okay, until the roller coaster gets to the top of the biggest peak and stalls. They are all stuck there. They can see the whole amusement park from that high, and they realize that all of the rides have stopped. Not only that, no one is moving—it’s as if time has stopped and frozen everyone into place, except for the group in the roller coaster car. They wait for hours for help but none comes. Eventually a few of the people climb out of the car and start to make their way down the railing on their hands and knees. The girl is afraid to get out of the car and afraid to stay in it.

POSSIBLE ENDING #1:

____________________________________________________________________________________

____________________________________________________________________________________

____________________________________________________________________________________

POSSIBLE ENDING #2:

____________________________________________________________________________________

____________________________________________________________________________________

____________________________________________________________________________________

POSSIBLE ENDING #3:

____________________________________________________________________________________

____________________________________________________________________________________

____________________________________________________________________________________