

Meeting Up With An Article

Informative text is often introduced in a way designed to grab the reader’s attention and make them want to know more. In this activity, you will practice writing an introduction to informative text.

DIRECTIONS: Practice writing brief introductory sections for each of the described informative texts below. Your introductory text should make an intriguing statement or ask a question that will make your readers want to know more.

1. An article for a school paper about a changing school lunch program.

2. An article for a school paper introducing upcoming sports programs.
