Read the story idea below and invent three different endings. Write quickly, getting down whatever comes into your mind.

A girl receives a mysterious text message on her cell phone from a number she doesn't recognize. It says: help me, you're my only hope. She receives the same message three days in a row. On the fourth day, the message gets more urgent: please, you have to help me. If you don't help me, all is lost. She texts back: who is this? But gets no response. The next day she gets another text. This time it is an address and a time. Her friends, in whom she has confided, beg her not to go. But half an hour before the proposed meeting time she gets another message: hurry! So she goes to the address, which is in a depressed part of town. The door is open and she goes inside. It is dim and dirty. She goes from room to room, calling out, but there is no answer. Suddenly her phone buzzes. She looks at the message. It says:
