Tense Situations

The causative is formed with:

HAVE + OBJECT + PAST PARTICIPLE

Present tense:
I have a haircut once a month.
I am having a haircut today.

Past tense:
I had my hair cut yesterday.

Present perfect:
I have just had my hair cut.

DIRECTIONS: Use the causative structure to rewrite each of the following sentences, using the tense indicated.

1. George paints his house. (present)
   __________________________________________
   __________________________________________

2. My father cuts our grass. (present perfect)
   __________________________________________
   __________________________________________

3. My mother cleans the house. (past)
   __________________________________________
   __________________________________________

4. We take our car for service. (past)
   __________________________________________
   __________________________________________